

For Immediate Release
August 27, 2008

Contact: Tina Wall
wall@lewisandwilkins.com

NEWS: PURDUE REVERSES PURDUE

In a second investigation over the same issues, Purdue University today reversed itself. Dr. Taleyarkhan is not surprised by this result as Purdue has no choice but to protect their own interests and the sanctions are unfair and egregious in their severity. The institutional failings of Purdue described by Congressman Miller continue and the same persons handling Purdue's prior investigation were inexplicably in charge of this investigation. Purdue exonerated Dr. Taleyarkhan originally, but has now reversed itself after admonishment by the U.S. Congress. Dr. Taleyarkhan has the support of many professors, staff and students at Purdue who have provided sworn affidavits documenting intimidation, discrimination and information about the willful conspiring to damage Dr. Taleyarkhan's reputation and career. Dr. Taleyarkhan has great support from his peers around the world. There is now a fork in the road to head down. "The matter at Purdue University is something that will be addressed, but will no longer affect bubble fusion research as the final two allegations have nothing to do with the science, which, as a consequence of this overall ordeal has been further vetted and strengthened in terms of its credibility," said Taleyarkhan. For the science of bubble fusion, this 3 year long investigation was a success.

Dr. Taleyarkhan has a right to appeal the erroneous sanctions by Purdue in this matter along with seeking redress from the Courts of the United States. John H. Lewis, Dr. Taleyarkhan's attorney from Indianapolis, says "Given the way Purdue administrators have handled this matter, Dr. Taleyarkhan has many options in the judicial system. These are such small matters given the enormous potential for the discovery there has to be decisions made on where to place time and resources. After years of fighting and being overwhelmingly successful against his detractors he may not want further part in this aspect and focus on teaching and research. Purdue's administration have a lot to answer with how they treat people. Unfortunately, bullies win until someone stands up to them".

# #